ARCH 655 – Land Use Planning – Is a graduate seminar course in planning that uses the LOCAL PLANNING: CONTEMPORARY PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE as its text. It is the premier and fundamental planning text of the discipline for both students and professionals.

Weekly Terms: Students will volunteer to present terms from the subject matter in class on a weekly basis.

Attendance and class assignments: Be on time for class. Entering class late is disruptive. Attendance is mandatory. Be prepared for class. The reading is typically one chapter per week. I am a graduate of NJIT and understand the demands of studio, employment, family, commuting, and a full course load.

Read the material and come to class prepared.

Grading:

Midterm: 45%

Final: 45%

Class participation and attendance: 10%

Notes from instructor:

Ask questions. Read the material.

Until I see you again, be well and do good things.
