VIDEO NARRATIVE

Course Description

It’s become popular to invoke a 21st century war of literacies: the old-fashioned reading variety vs. the version connected to the vast realm of screen culture. Indeed, as technological advances have led to the infusion of new audio and visual media formats into nearly every form of cultural production, it’s impossible to conceive of contemporary literacy without taking the digital into account. But in this course, we’ll treat reading/writing and screening/making moving images not as oppositional practices but as inherently and richly connected ones. We’ll investigate the video narrative as both a media object and a flexible discourse, one that spans a wide array of uses and genres. In so doing, students will develop new strategies for reading, writing, meaning-making, story-telling and imaginative expression.
Learning Objectives

• Acquire fluency in a variety of historical and theoretical lineages of moving-image semiotics
• Gain familiarity with strategies and techniques for both reading and writing within a visually-based, screen-oriented culture
• Build knowledge of and be able to practice hands-on techniques and technologies to produce both independent and collaborative media works
• Develop and effectively use critical language with respect to relationships between form and content and among media makers, subjects, and viewers
• Show competency in the production and critical analysis of electronic media with respect to: visual narrative structures, writing for screens, moving image genres and paradigms of distribution

Requirements

Videography Assignments
Three major video projects will comprise the bulk of assigned and assessed work. The projects will demonstrate different video genres and will be organized and produced in small, pre-formed groups.

Research and Critical Analysis Assignments
Several assignments are designed to build competency in basic videography techniques, including camerawork, script and storyboard writing and editing. Short exercises assigned toward the beginning of the course will offer students the opportunity to engage with the fundamentals of video production on both individual and group levels. One essay demonstrating capability in integrating creative thinking and critical analysis (applying theory to practice) will be assigned toward the end of term.

Forum Discussion Assignments
Throughout the course, we will read/screen and critically discuss various essays and media works that are central to the discipline of moving image studies. Five separate forum discussion topics will be available via Moodle covering some of the issues and ideas brought up in these works. Five percent of your total grade will depend upon timely, coherent and thoughtful responses to these topics.

Participation
Each class will offer students the opportunity to discuss and question the topics presented both online and offline. Following this format, ten percent of the final grade will be based on both the frequency and quality of the student’s comments, questions and observations, with the emphasis on quality. The quality is determined by, among other things, the relevance, insight and clarity of remarks.

Attendance/ Participation: 10 points

Grading

Evaluation will follow the university’s grading scale:

\[
\begin{align*}
\text{A} &= 100-90 \text{ (superior)} \\
\text{B} &= 86-80 \text{ (very good)} \\
\text{C} &= 76-70 \text{ (acceptable)} \\
\text{F} &= 59-0 \text{ (inadequate)} \\
\text{B+} &= 89-87 \text{ (excellent)} \\
\text{C+} &= 79-77 \text{ (good)} \\
\text{D} &= 69-60 \text{ (minimum)}
\end{align*}
\]

Attendance Policy

I expect every student to attend every class and to be on time.

If you miss a class, you are responsible for catching up (please contact me to inquire about missed material) as well as for submitting assignments due on the missed day (before our class meeting time); missed in-class group exercises and workshops cannot be made up.

Every unexcused absence after the second one will reduce your participation grade. More than four unexcused absences (4 weeks of the curriculum) can result in automatic failure of the course; excessive unexcused lateness of 15 minutes or more throughout the course will be considered as one absence.

According to university policy, students who expect to miss classes or exams because of religious observance must submit to their instructors, by the end of the second week of classes, a written list of dates that will be missed. Similarly, athletes should submit a list of events. If you can’t make a class—due to illness, an academic commitment, an interview, or a major extracurricular event—and you wish to have the absence excused, ask the Dean of Students to review the request.

Technology

Please silence your cell phone completely, and don’t have it out in class (except, of course, in cases where its camera-use is connected to class work).

Plagiarism and Cheating

The NJIT University Code on Academic Integrity defines plagiarism as using or attempting to use written, oral, or graphic work which was authored or prepared by another and submitting it as one’s own. The full Code can be found at https://www5.njit.edu/policies/sites/policies/files/academic-integrity-code.pdf.

If your work uses the idea or language of any other person, make that use clear to your reader by citing clearly and thoroughly. If I find plagiarized work, even if it seems to stem from carelessness, I’m required to report it to the Dean of Students.
Documented Disabilities

If you are a student with a documented disability, please see me at the beginning of the semester to discuss accommodations. You may also contact Student Disability Services at (973) 596-3420.

Writing Center

The NJIT Writing Center, located in Central King Building G17, offers one-on-one appointments to help with your written assignments. They are equipped to work with both creative and scholarly forms of writing. Please visit: https://www.njit.edu/writingcenter/
