Course Description:
In this course, we will study how urban space was produced and how those who moved within cities made sense of it and themselves. Specifically, we will seek to understand how struggles over urban spaces and narratives and representations contributed to the understandings of the limits and possibilities of urban space including their shaping of notions of citizenship, belonging, race, class, gender, and sexuality.

To do so, we will examine primary sources ranging from legal cases, government reports, architectural plans, and newspaper stories to television, movies, and music. In addition, we will make use of leading scholarship on law, culture, and design to give us context for interpreting primary sources and to help make sense of key historical events, people, and ideas in 20th and 21st century US urban history.

Course Goals:
1. Students will learn and practice the skills necessary to analyze, discuss, and write about primary and secondary sources related to the study of American cities
2. Students will understand and apply the concept of the 'production' of urban space through analysis of primary and secondary sources
3. Students will identify and explain the significance of key events, terms, and people related to the 20th and 21st century urban history

Course Texts
All course materials are available via canvas.njit.edu

Course Grade:
The course grade will be calculated as follows:
- Class participation 18%
- Reading Quizzes – 5 x 3% 15%
- Final Exam 27%
- Primary Source Short Paper – 2 x 14% = 28%
Failure to complete all of the above assignments will result in an automatic F for the course.

Assignments:
Class participation
Students are expected to participate actively in all class discussions and activities, to be respectful to the instructor and their fellow classmates, to arrive to class on time, and to stay focused on what is happening in our classroom not on chatting or using digital devices. Further, participation will be assessed not just on quantity but also on quality. Quality participation demonstrates knowledge of the issues at hand, completion of that week’s assignments, and a willingness to engage in critical assessment of course texts and lectures. The participation grade may also include pop quizzes and short writing assignments done in class.

I encourage students to check in with me over the course of the semester regarding their class participation performance. As a reminder, office hours are for meeting with students. Further, do not wait to contact me if you are falling behind, having trouble understanding course content, or want to know more about what we are studying. I am here to help!

Short Primary Source Papers
This assignment asks you to complete a 400-600 word analysis of a primary source related to that particular week’s theme. You must choose a source from the syllabus or supplemental source list provided. You may choose a different source but must get permission from the instructor to use it.

Though a short paper, you will want to formulate an argument as to what your source(s) help us understand about the broader theme of U.S. urban history under consideration that week. You must complete one paper before Week 9 and one from Week 9 – Week 15.

Reading Quizzes – 3% x 5
Five times during the semester, you will complete a multiple-choice reading quiz on Canvas designed to test reading comprehension of that day’s assignment.

Recap Paper
We begin each class with a short discussion of the big takeaways from our last session. This assignment asks you to lead that recap discussion as well as submit a short (300-600) written recap.

Your recap should include the key analytical takeaways from a lecture and/or discussion. That means, you should articulate what we learned or now understand about that week’s theme or topic.

The goals of this assignment are to:
● Articulate to yourself and your classmates what we learned or understood about the previous class’s theme or topic
• Prepare for questions on the final exam that will rely on your knowledge of these larger analytical points
• Practice historical writing including synthetic description and analysis

Exam
There will be one exam. It is a take-home essay exam. This exam will test your knowledge of key terms, events, policies, and debates in urban history and will ask you to make broader connections across eras, places, and peoples in United States urban history.

Course Policies

Attendance:
Students are expected to attend all course meetings on time unless receiving prior authorization. Missing class will not only adversely affect your class participation grade, but there will be screenings in class that will only be offered during that class period so do your best to attend. If you miss class to attend an NJIT sponsored event, to observe a religious holiday, or due to a documented illness, those absences will be excused. For these absences to count as excused, you must receive permission from the instructor in advance or provide a doctor's note in the case of sickness.

Classroom Conduct:
In this course, we welcome intellectual inquiry and thoughtful discussion of difficult questions but hate speech and disrespectful comments will not be tolerated. We must come to class with an open mind, a willingness to learn, and fundamental respect for the humanity of each person in the room and the historical actors we discuss.

Office hours/student appointments:
My office hours will be:
• Monday 12PM-2PM
• Wednesday 12PM-2PM
• Thursday 11AM-1230PM
• If you cannot make an appointment during these times, please contact me to schedule a different time to meet.

All appointments for those hours should be made at least 6 hours in advance via riismandel.youcanbook.me. I am also available to meet outside of those hours if students are unavailable during these times. Feel free to send me an email to set up a meeting if you’d like to talk or have any questions about course topics, assignments, or grades.

Academic dishonesty:
Students are expected to obey the NJIT honor code, and I will enforce this code to its fullest extent. The goal of this course is to evaluate your understanding of course materials and ability to express that understanding. Cheating, plagiarizing or otherwise violating the code of academic integrity not only breaks the trust between professor and student but keeps you from learning course content and improving writing and critical thinking skills. I am here to help so if you are having trouble, do not cheat, ask me for help.
For the tenets of the code or for clarification of what constitutes plagiarism or cheating, please consult: http://www.njit.edu/academics/honorcode.php.

Generally speaking, it is a violation of the academic integrity code to:
- Use someone else’s words or ideas without attribution
- Copy content from someone else’s paper, quiz, or exam
- Pay for course assignments to be complete by someone else

Cell phones, Laptops, and Miscellaneous Technology Rules:
Though my preference is for students to have their webcams on during class, I do not require this as I know this is not necessarily feasible or comfortable for many students.

Given that class is remote, we must all do our best to stay focused on what we are working on together during class time. It is tempting to do any number of things other than listen and participate. Essentially, you are in class approximately 3 hours a week. Please be present and prepared when you are here.

Students Requiring Accommodations:
Students who require accommodations should contact NJIT's Student Disability Services to help procure accommodations in completing coursework. The center can be found at http://www.njit.edu/counseling/services/disabilities.php.
