Course Description

ENGL 101 is an introduction to college-level writing. In this course, students are introduced to writing's rhetorical dimensions; they are asked to consider the purpose, audience, occasion, and genre that are called for in a variety of writing, speaking, or visual assignments. The course also focuses on writing processes, asking students to brainstorm topics, collect ideas, research, write drafts, and revise their writing based on writing's disciplinary rules, self-reflection, and peer and class feedback. Academic writing begins from the assumption that written, visual, and spoken texts can be in conversation with each other. Students are asked to read challenging articles, essays, and prose (and to consider visual and spoken compositions) which serve as both models of effective communication and as beginning places for students' own arguments and analyses. This section of ENGL 101 has a special focus on critical media literacy; the relationships between media, information, and power; and the potential uses of communication technology to either empower, enlighten, and illuminate, or marginalize, manipulate, and misrepresent. Students will be asked to critically analyze media and consider strategies for harnessing technologies of communication to enhance democratization and participation.

15% Narrative Essay (1,000 words)

This essay focuses on a piece of media that has impacted your life and the development of your relationship to media, language, popular culture, and textual analysis. It follows the conventions of a first-person personal essay.

20% Argument Essay (1,000 words)

This essay extracts academic arguments from 2 assigned sources and advances an evidence-backed claim/thesis in response to those sources.

15% Rhetorical Analysis (1,000 words)

This essay compares and contrasts the rhetorical strategies used in multiple sources, using details from each source to form an overall assessment.

25% Research Paper (1,500 words)

This essay advances a clear argument supported by 5 academic sources. This work will prepare you for more extended research writing in ENGL 102.

10% Research Presentation

You will present your research findings (including a visual component) to a group of peers and participate in a Q&A.

Writing Process

For the narrative essay, argument essay, rhetorical analysis, and research paper, students must submit both a first and final draft in order to receive credit for the assignment.

The final draft of each assignment should reflect significant revision and engagement with instructor and/or peer feedback. Students will receive a grade on both the first and final draft of each assignment; when both drafts are submitted on time, the grade on the final draft replaces that of the first draft. (For example, if a student receives a 75 on their first draft, revises their essay, then receives a 90 on their final draft, their grade for the assignment overall is a 90.)

Late Work

Late work will not be accepted, except in the case of an excused absence. Students should contact their instructor in advance of due dates when having difficulty completing an assignment.

Writing Center

The Writing Center (G17 Central King) is available for one-hour individual and group appointments with professional writing tutors both onsite and online. Find more information here.

Attending office hours with me and/or appointment(s) in the Writing Center will contribute to your Participation grade.

Attendance

You may miss up to one week of class (or two classes) without penalty. Every subsequent unexcused absence will result in a grade reduction. More than six unexcused absences (three weeks of the course) can result in failure of the course. Contact the Dean of Students in order to establish an excused absence.

Accessibility

If you are a student with a documented disability, please see me as early in the semester as possible to discuss necessary accommodations, and/or contact the Office of Accessibility Resources and Services (Kupfrian Hall 201).

Electronics

Technology of all kinds is prohibited in the classroom, unless otherwise indicated. You will be expected to take notes and complete in-class exercises with pen and paper, so come prepared. There may be designated opportunities to complete work during class time using a laptop or tablet; I will inform you of these opportunities in advance. If you need tech for accessibility reasons, let me know. I am happy to work with you and NJIT's Office of Accessibility Resources and Services to make necessary accommodations.

Academic Integrity

See NJIT's University Policy on Academic Integrity here. Any student found in violation of the code by cheating or plagiarizing will receive a failing grade and be reported to the department and the Dean of Students. Violating the code may result in suspension or dismissal from the university.

Generative Artificial Intelligence (ChatGPT)

In concert with NJIT's University Policy on Academic Integrity, which mandates that "each student shall demonstrate honesty and integrity in the completion of all assignments and in the participation of the learning process," this course has been designed to promote your learning, critical thinking, skills, and intellectual development without reliance on unauthorized technology, including chatbots and other forms of "artificial intelligence" (AI). Although you may use search engines, spell-check, and simple grammar-check in crafting your assignments, your assignments must represent your own work, and you may not use any unauthorized or unacknowledged assistance or sources in completing it, including free or commercial systems or services offered on the Internet or text generating systems embedded into software.

Several mini-assignments will require the use of generative AI in order to build your learning on critical AI literacy; these assignments constitute the exception, not the rule, and will be clearly indicated.

Please consult with your instructor if you have any questions about the permissible use of technology in this class, or if you have data privacy or other concerns about the mandatory use of AI tools in select assignments.
