

Fall 2023

STS-308 (001-HM1): Globalization

Theresa Hunt

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.njit.edu/hum-syllabi>

Recommended Citation

Hunt, Theresa, "STS-308 (001-HM1): Globalization" (2023). Humanities Syllabi. 700.
<https://digitalcommons.njit.edu/hum-syllabi/700>

This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the NJIT Syllabi at Digital Commons @ NJIT. It has been accepted for inclusion in Humanities Syllabi by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ NJIT. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@njit.edu.

Course Overview:

What is globalization? What is the global system? How have global political relationships been impacted by evolving technologies? How do non-state actors, from multinational corporations to transnational social justice movements challenge traditional power structures? What role does the global community play in human development and economic growth? The aim of this course is to explore these and other kinds of questions examining the ever-evolving relationships that define contemporary globalization. In particular, we will consider the role technologies and ideas about technologies play in shaping human and economic development, both locally and within a global framework. We will also pay close attention to the concept of global cities, and consider whether and how we might regard Newark in this role.

Coursework Overview

Class Meetings: This class meets face-to-face from 11:30 AM – 12:50 PM on Tuesdays and Thursdays in FMH 307. Some of these classes will include lectures; all classes include discussion and/or classwork. Your active participation is expected. Classwork and discussion credit cannot be made up if you miss class or arrive late. The lowest score from each of these categories will be dropped by the semester's end.

Collaborative Projects: Planning sessions will also be incorporated into our class time to help facilitate successful group projects. For these projects, students will collaborate to determine topics, divide research tasks, and prepare a class presentation. Meetings are flexible and can include alternate locations. This project, along with options and procedures for determining meeting locations and checking in with Dr. Hunt, will be discussed during week 1 of our course.

Exams: Course content and reading will differ in each unit. It is imperative that students keep pace with the course reading / lesson schedule, as the units build upon each other. Two exams will be administered to assess learning. Exams include multiple choice questions on the assigned readings, as well as short-answer questions demonstrating student's engagement with the assigned work. Critical feedback on these questions will direct students toward what they need to focus on more specifically in preparation for future assignments. There will be NO final exam for this course.

Final Paper: A final, 6-8 page paper expanding ONE of your collaborative projects will be required by the end of the semester. This paper will include bibliographic research and be presented in MLA or APA format. Options for type and format will be discussed in mid February.

 Other Course Policies ***

Late assignments:

For Collaborative Projects, completing tasks on time is essential. Your group is depending on your active and timely contributions to produce successful content. Task lists and outlines will be created during the “prep session” and will include group-determined deadlines. Self- and group-evaluation assessments will be completed by the end of each project, and will include an assessment of whether/how you have completed tasks on time. Rubrics for Module assessment include on-time completion of tasks.

Final Projects submitted late will lose 1 grade point per day (ie from a B to a C). Work submitted 48 hours after the stated deadline will receive NO credit. Receipt of final papers is verified through TurnItIn or instructor email. If you do not receive a return receipt within four hours of sending the final paper, it is your responsibility to follow up and ensure your paper has been received.

Plagiarism, presenting someone else’s words, thoughts, or ideas (in whole or in part) as your own, is cheating and will not be tolerated. This includes the use of LLM such as ChatGPT. The NJIT Honor Code will be upheld, and any violations will be brought to the immediate attention of the Dean of Students. NJIT enforces strict academic integrity policies, and any plagiarized material will result in a failing grade for the assignment and possibly for the course. Academic probation and possible suspension or expulsion from the university may also be pursued by NJIT administration in cases of plagiarism. Three very important things to remember:

- 1) Various plagiarism-detection tools are employed in this course.
- 2) There have been numerous cases of students attempting to submit papers written by students enrolled in earlier versions of this class. These students have received failing grades and academic probation – and the students supplying the papers have also been punished.
- 3) If you’re struggling with the final project or concerned about these policies, I’m happy to work with you! Plagiarism is not worth the risk to your future.

Learning Objectives:

This course offers the opportunity for students to improve skills of analysis, argumentation, critical thinking, information synthesis, research, writing, and oral presentation. In terms of this course's subject, this means students will:

1. Apply abstract theoretical concepts of globalization and development encountered through class readings and lecture to particular case studies involving technology (including sustainability movements, war, and information regulation).
2. Practice reading, understanding, and analyzing documents covering related topics, including films, polemical/opinion pieces, scholarly writing and journalist-style reporting.
3. Demonstrate comprehension and analysis of concepts through writing.
4. Demonstrate an understanding of rhetorical strategies involved in contemporary writing about globalization, economic development and political systems.
5. Demonstrate comprehension of and capability with said rhetorical strategies in developing a presentation covering issues related to course themes.
6. Locate and evaluate resources provided by NJIT's library (and other databases/sources located independently) to develop information-based and argumentative research projects.

Research:

During the semester, students will complete several research tasks. To excel in this course, you are expected to be able to locate and use Internet AND library resources effectively, and cite them correctly. If you are unfamiliar with research methods appropriate for a third year college course (i.e. more than Google), your success in this course will be significantly impacted. This course offers you an opportunity to practice and polish these important information literacy skills, and you should draw on the resources provided in the introductory module as needed. In addition, VanHouten Library is an excellent source of support! Quinn Morris-Pearson is an expert researcher and our librarian for the Humanities & Social Sciences Department. Our reference team has prepared many resources for students that you may find useful as you complete assignments for this course.

InQuizitive Assignments:

InQuizitive is an online, adaptive learning tool that works in conjunction with the e-text or hard-copy version of our assigned text, Essentials of International Relations. Completing the questions and other exercises for the assigned chapters will help you process and understand the material, and feel better prepared for exams and other higher-stakes assignments.

Required Texts:

Mingst, K, and McKibben, H. (2023). Essentials of International Relations, 9th Edition, with eBook & InQuizitive. ISBN 978-0-393-87217-0

Additional articles will be made available for free on Canvas

Final Grade assessment formula:

Classwork	10%
InQuizitive	10%
Collaborative Projects	40%
Final Paper	15%
Exams	25%
Attendance and Participation	10%

Final Grade assignments:

A =89.6-100; B+=87-89.5; B =80-86.5; C+=77-79.5; C =69.5-76.5; D+ =66.5-69.5; D = 59.5-64.5; F =59.4 or below

Module 1: Historical Trends & Theory

September 5 (T)	Course Introduction and overview
September 7 (Th)	Read ONE of the following: Haddad, " Extreme Poverty Has Been Sharply Cut. What Has Changed? "; Benjamin et al, " Measuring the Essence of the Good Life "; Terzi and Marcuzzi, " Are Multinationals Eclipsing Nation-States? "
September 12	Read Chapter 1-2: Approaches to International Relations & Historical Context
September 14	Read Chapter 3-4: International Relations Theory & Levels of Analysis
September 19	Read Chapter 5: The State and Tools of Statecraft
September 21	Project 1 Overview & Introduction to Small Groups InQuizitive Activities 1-5 due by September 23 at midnight
September 26	Project 1 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
September 28	Project 1 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
October 3	Projects Due ; Selected Groups Present
October 5	Project Review Session

Module 2: Globalization in Practice

October 10	Exam 1
October 12	Read Chapter 6: War and Security
October 17	Read Chapter 7-8: International Cooperation & IPE
October 19	Read Chapter 9: IGOs & NGOs InQuizitive Activities 6-9 due by October 22 at midnight
October 24	Read Larmer, " Is China the World's New Colonial Power? " Film: Life & Debt ;
October 26	Project 2 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
October 31	Project 2 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
November 7	Projects Due ; Selected Groups Present
November 9	Project Review Session

Module 3: Case Studies of Global Issues

November 14	Exam 2
November 16	Read Chapter 10: Human Rights
November 21	Reach Chapters 11-12: The Environment & Human Security
November 28	Project 3 Overview
November 30	Project 3 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
December 5	Project 3 Planning Session: Small Groups Meet
December 7	Projects Due ; Selected Groups Present
December 12	Project Review Session

Final papers due no later than midnight on Sunday, December 17